

Health professionals

Codes of Ethics and Conduct

Speech Pathology Australia Code of Ethics

<http://www.speechpathologyaustralia.org.au/information-for-the-public/code-of-ethics>

Speech Pathology Australia's Code of Ethics contains standards that:

- reinforce the principles on which ethical decisions are made
- help association members adopt professional and legitimate behaviour in their Speech Pathology practice.

The Nursing and Midwifery Board of Australia Codes and Guidelines

<http://www.nursingmidwiferyboard.gov.au/Codes-Guidelines-Statements/Codes-Guidelines.aspx>

The Nursing and Midwifery Board of Australia approves codes and guidelines to provide guidance to the professions. These also help to clarify views and expectations on a range of issues.

Australian Medical Association (AMA) Code of Ethics

<http://www.ama.com.au/codeofethics>

The AMA's Code of Ethics articulates and promotes a body of ethical principles to guide doctors' conduct in their relationships with patients, colleagues and society. The AMA accepts the responsibility for setting the standards of ethical behaviour expected of doctors.

Australian Association of Occupational Therapists Code of Ethics

<https://www.otaus.com.au/sitebuilder/onlinestore/files/14/codeofethics.pdf>

OT Australia's Code of Ethics is intended to guide occupational therapists in their professional practice.

Australian Association of Social Workers (AASW) Code of Ethics

<http://www.aasw.asn.au/document/item/1201>

The AASW is the professional representative body of social workers in Australia. Its Code of Ethics contains a set of principles that have been agreed to by all AASW members. The Code of Ethics is aimed at guiding all social work practice in Australia. This document is currently being reviewed and will be available mid November 2010 from www.aasw.asn.au

Australian Physiotherapy Association (APA) Code of Conduct

http://www.physiotherapy.asn.au/DocumentsFolder/APAWCM/The%20APA/Governance/Code_of_Conduct_V2013.pdf

The APA's Code of Conduct sets the basis for ethical and professional conduct which meets community expectations and justifies community trust in the judgement and integrity of APA members. The Code of Conduct is based on four ethical principles. Physiotherapists who are members of the APA are bound to uphold the Code of Conduct.

Dieticians Association of Australia (DAA) Codes of Professional Conduct and Statements of Ethical Practice

<http://daa.asn.au/for-the-public/about-daa/constitution-and-by-laws/>

The DAA's Code of Ethics aims to identify fundamental values and principles. Its Members and Accredited Practising Dietitians (APDs) are required to abide by the professional standards.

Pharmaceutical Society of Australia (PSA) Code of Ethics

<http://www.psa.org.au/membership/ethics>

The PSA Code of Professional Conduct is a means for self-regulation and to publicly state the principles by which members of the profession interact with clients, other health professionals and the community.